

The Canada Elections Act limits who may make monetary contributions to federal political parties and how much they can contribute. In the case of contributions from individual partners where their partnership is acting as a delivery agent, each individual contribution forming part of the aggregate contribution delivered by the partnership must be identified as being contributed by specific individual partners. Each individual contributing partner's contributed amount will be calculated toward his or her annual contribution limit of $1,500.00 prescribed by the Canada Elections Act.

The partnership may act as a 'delivery agent' for contributions made by an individual partner to the Liberal Party of Canada. The partnership should secure written instructions from each partner contributing funds in the aggregate contribution (as per Elections Canada Information Sheet 10 Paragraph 11)

- (a) that the partnership is authorized to act as agent for the delivery of a contribution by each individual partner whose contribution is included in the aggregate contribution delivered by the partnership,
- (b) the contributing partner's name and personal address;
- (c) that the contribution is voluntary; and
- (d) the amount of the individual contribution made by each individual contributing partner which is included in the aggregate contribution.
